20. Canadian (1955), cont.

The 2,874-mile journey takes an average of seventy hours, with stops in major Canadian cities along the route. This cross-country trip has become a popular tourist activity, showcasing the magnificent scenery of Canada's spectacular mountains, rivers, and lakes. The lead locomotive is painted bright red with broad white stripes running diagonally over the nose.

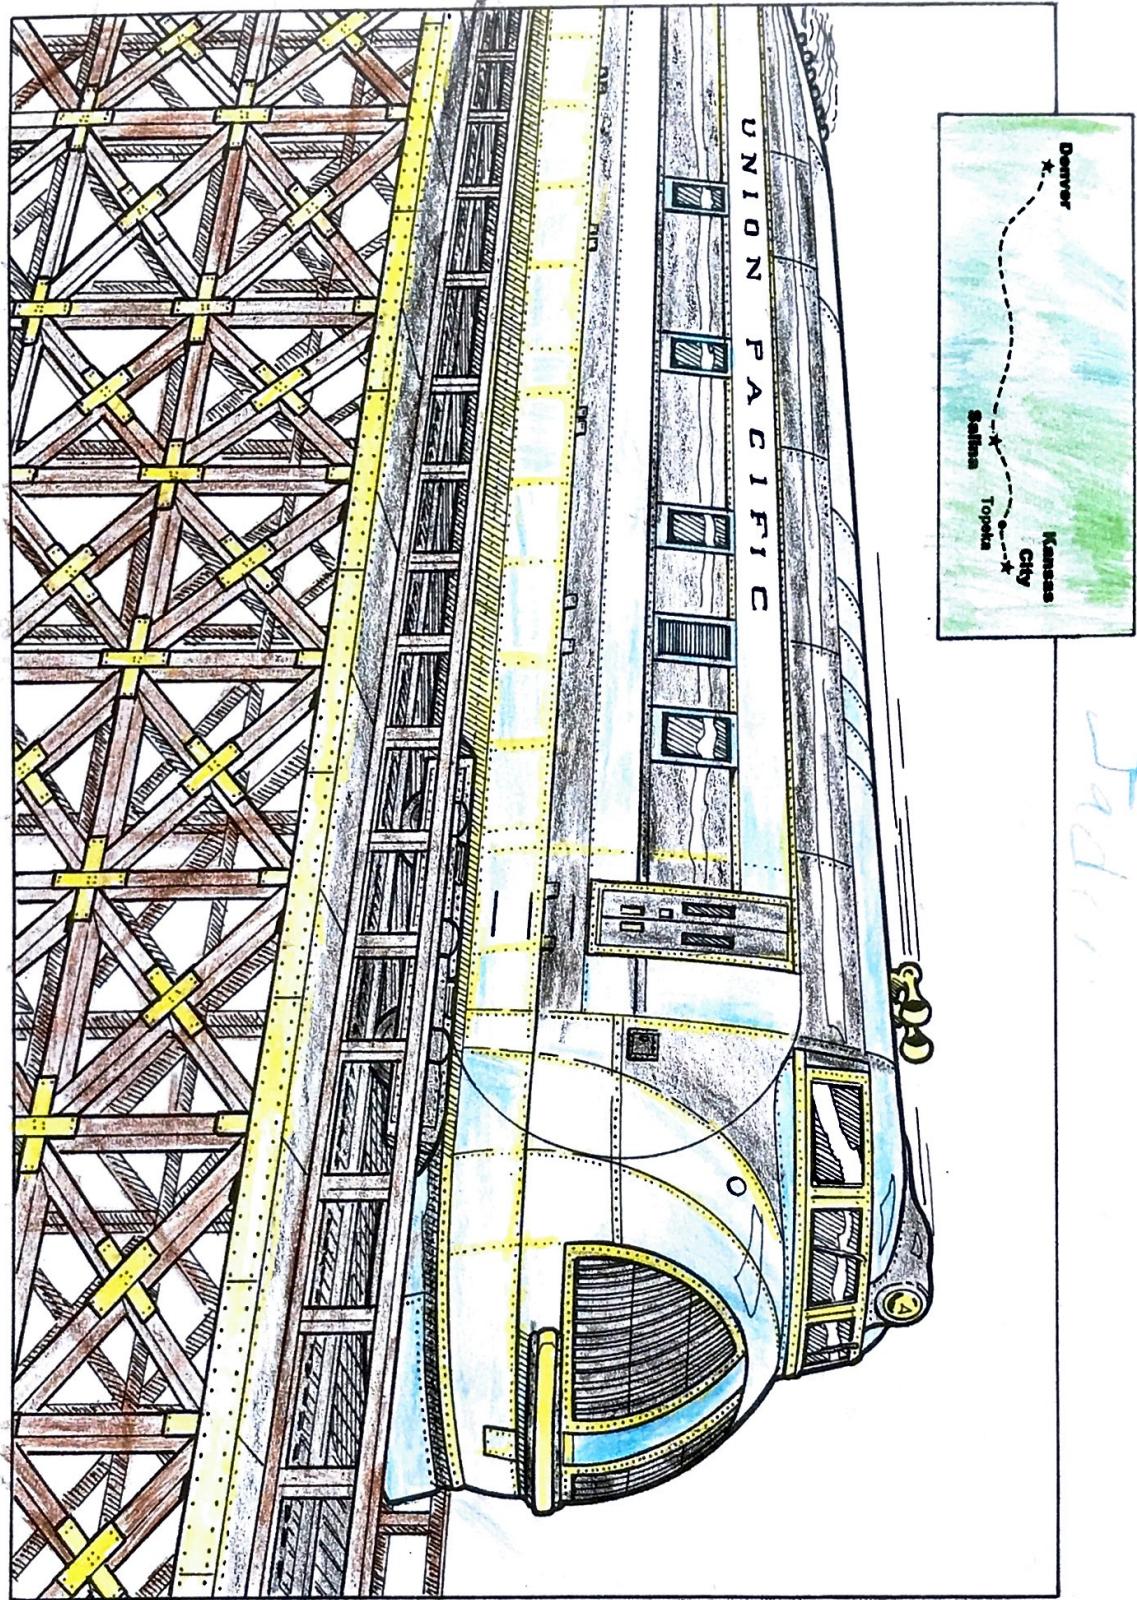

4. Super Chief (1937)

Among the most famous of American passenger trains was the Super Chief, operated by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company from 1937 until the mid-1950s. It operated on the transcontinental route from Chicago to Los Angeles, passing through the heartland of the Great Plains and Southwestern deserts and mountains of the United States. It was one of the primary instruments used in the massive migration of Easterners to the Golden Southwest during the post-World War II period. The Super Chief was powered by the new E and F series of diesel-electric streamliners introduced by General Motors Electro-motive Division in 1937. These sleek and powerful engines could cruise at 100 miles per hour, and were much more reliable and durable than steam locomotives of the era.

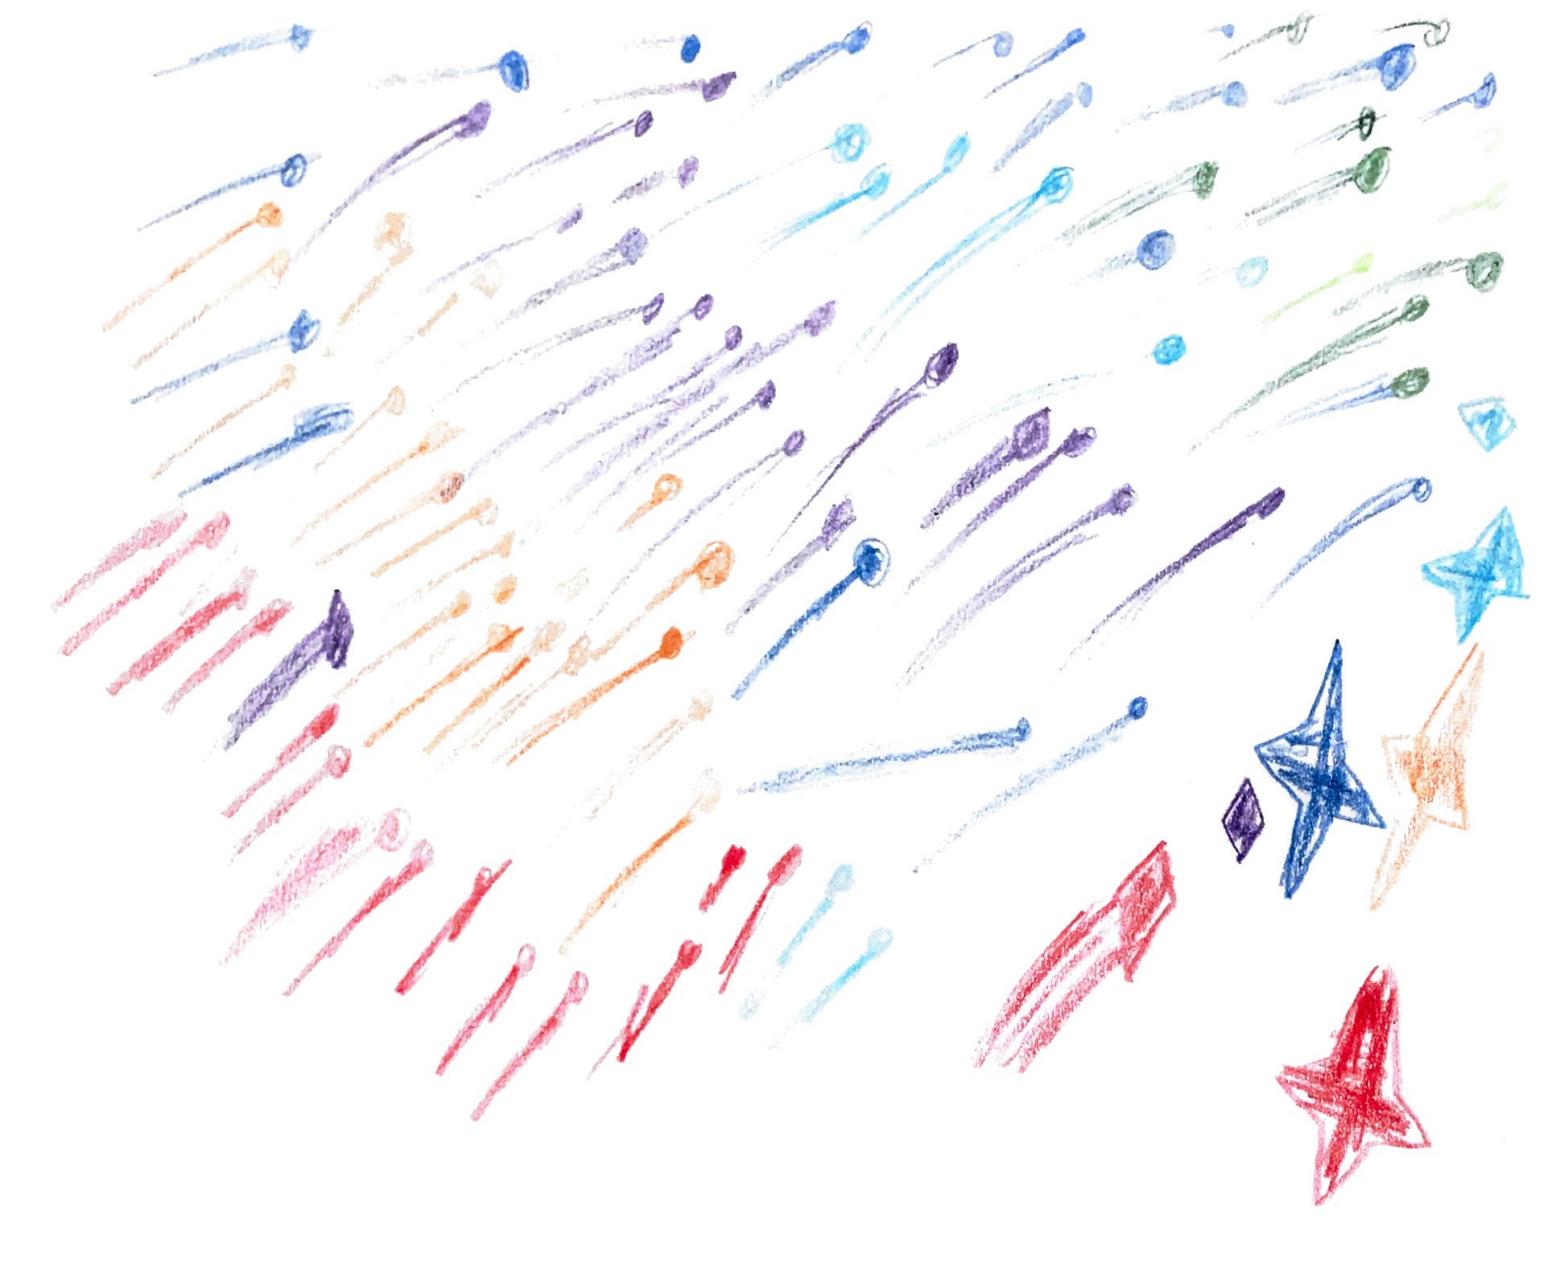

21. M-10000 (1934)

With its launch in February 1934, the first streamliner in service was the Union Pacific M-10000, which just barely preceded the April 1934 introduction of the Burlington Zephyr. Although the brown and yellow three-car trainset was the first streamliner, it was not the first diesel-electric streamlined train; the M-10000 was powered by a 600-horsepower petroleum distillate (gasoline) engine. The M-10000 went into regular operation on the short rail route from Kansas City to Salina, Kansas, and was christened the City of Salina, the first of Union Pacific's "City" series of trains. Later versions of the M-10000 design would switch to the more durable diesel engine.

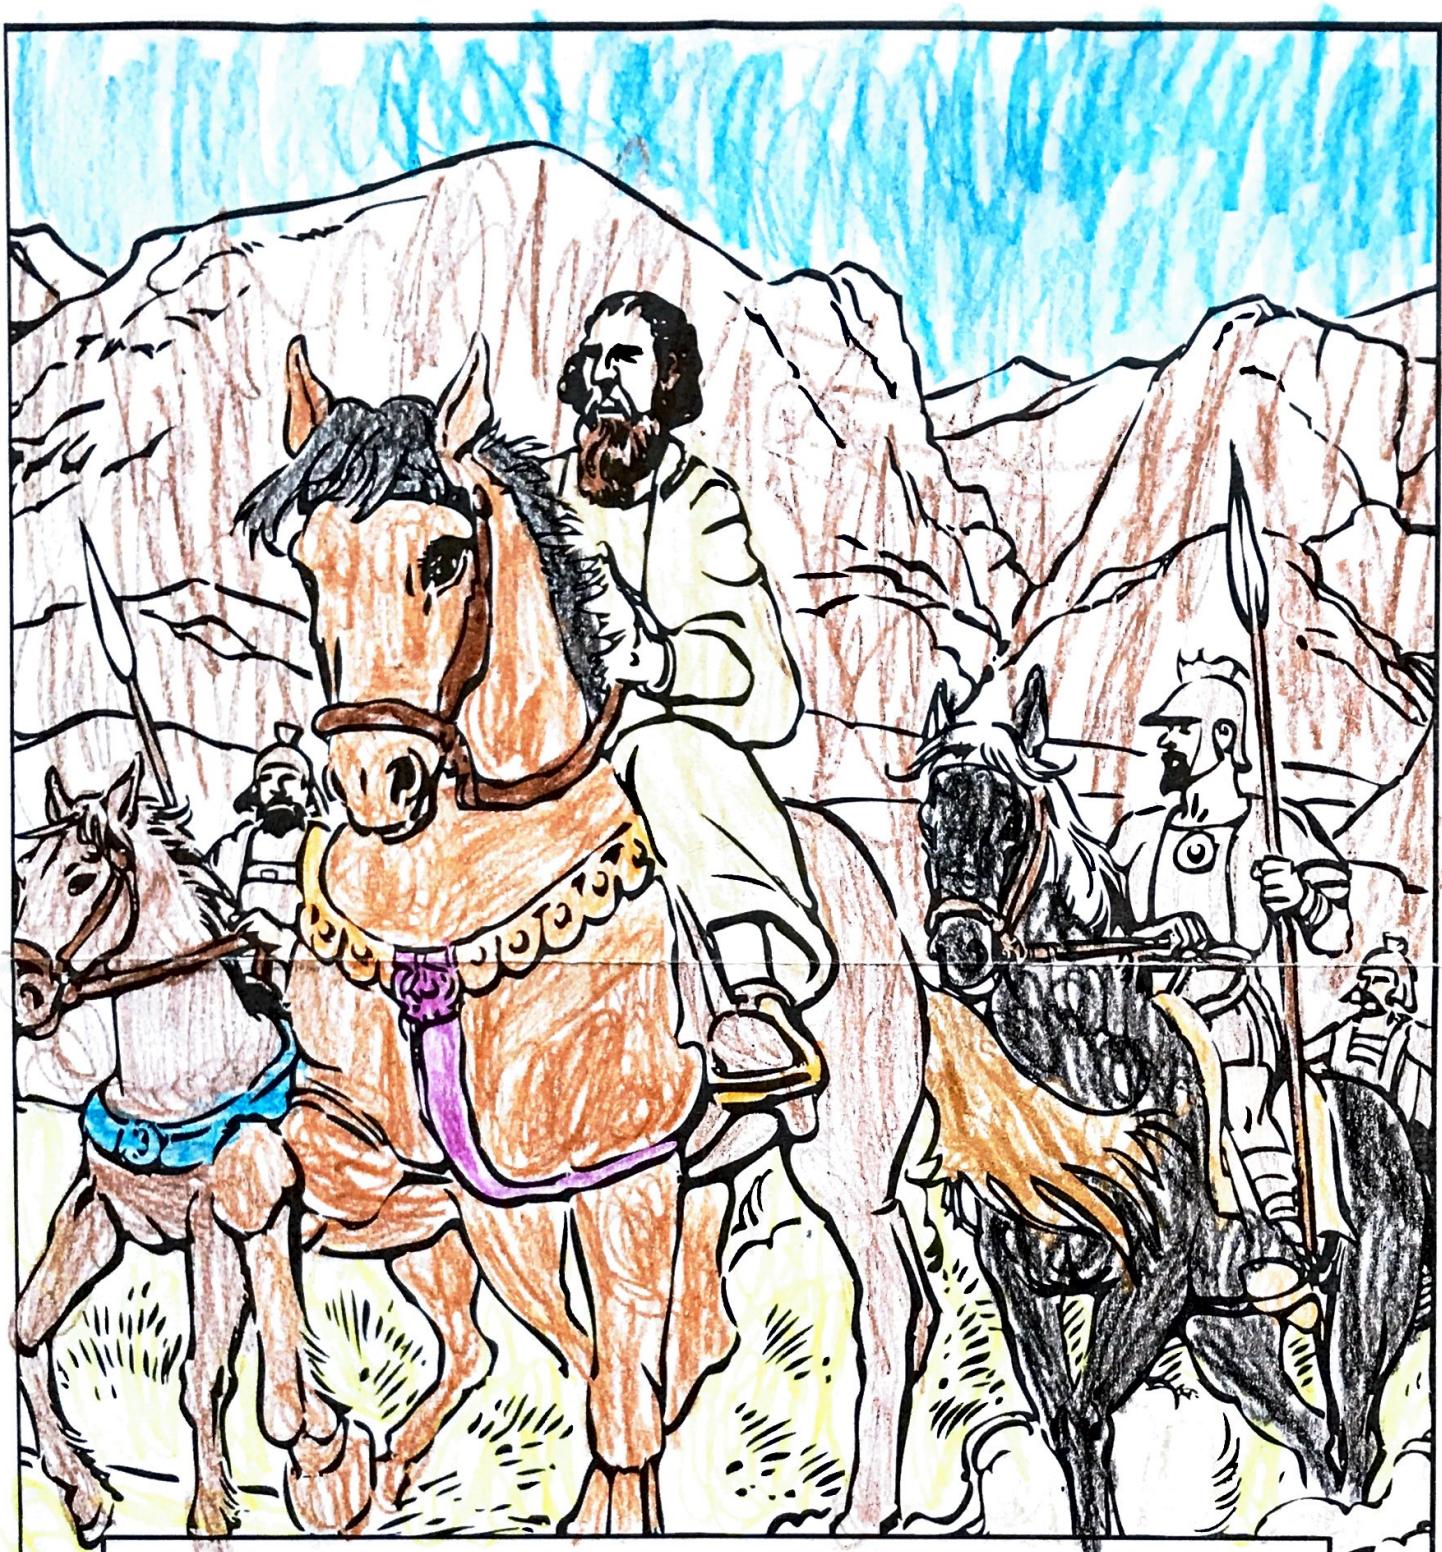

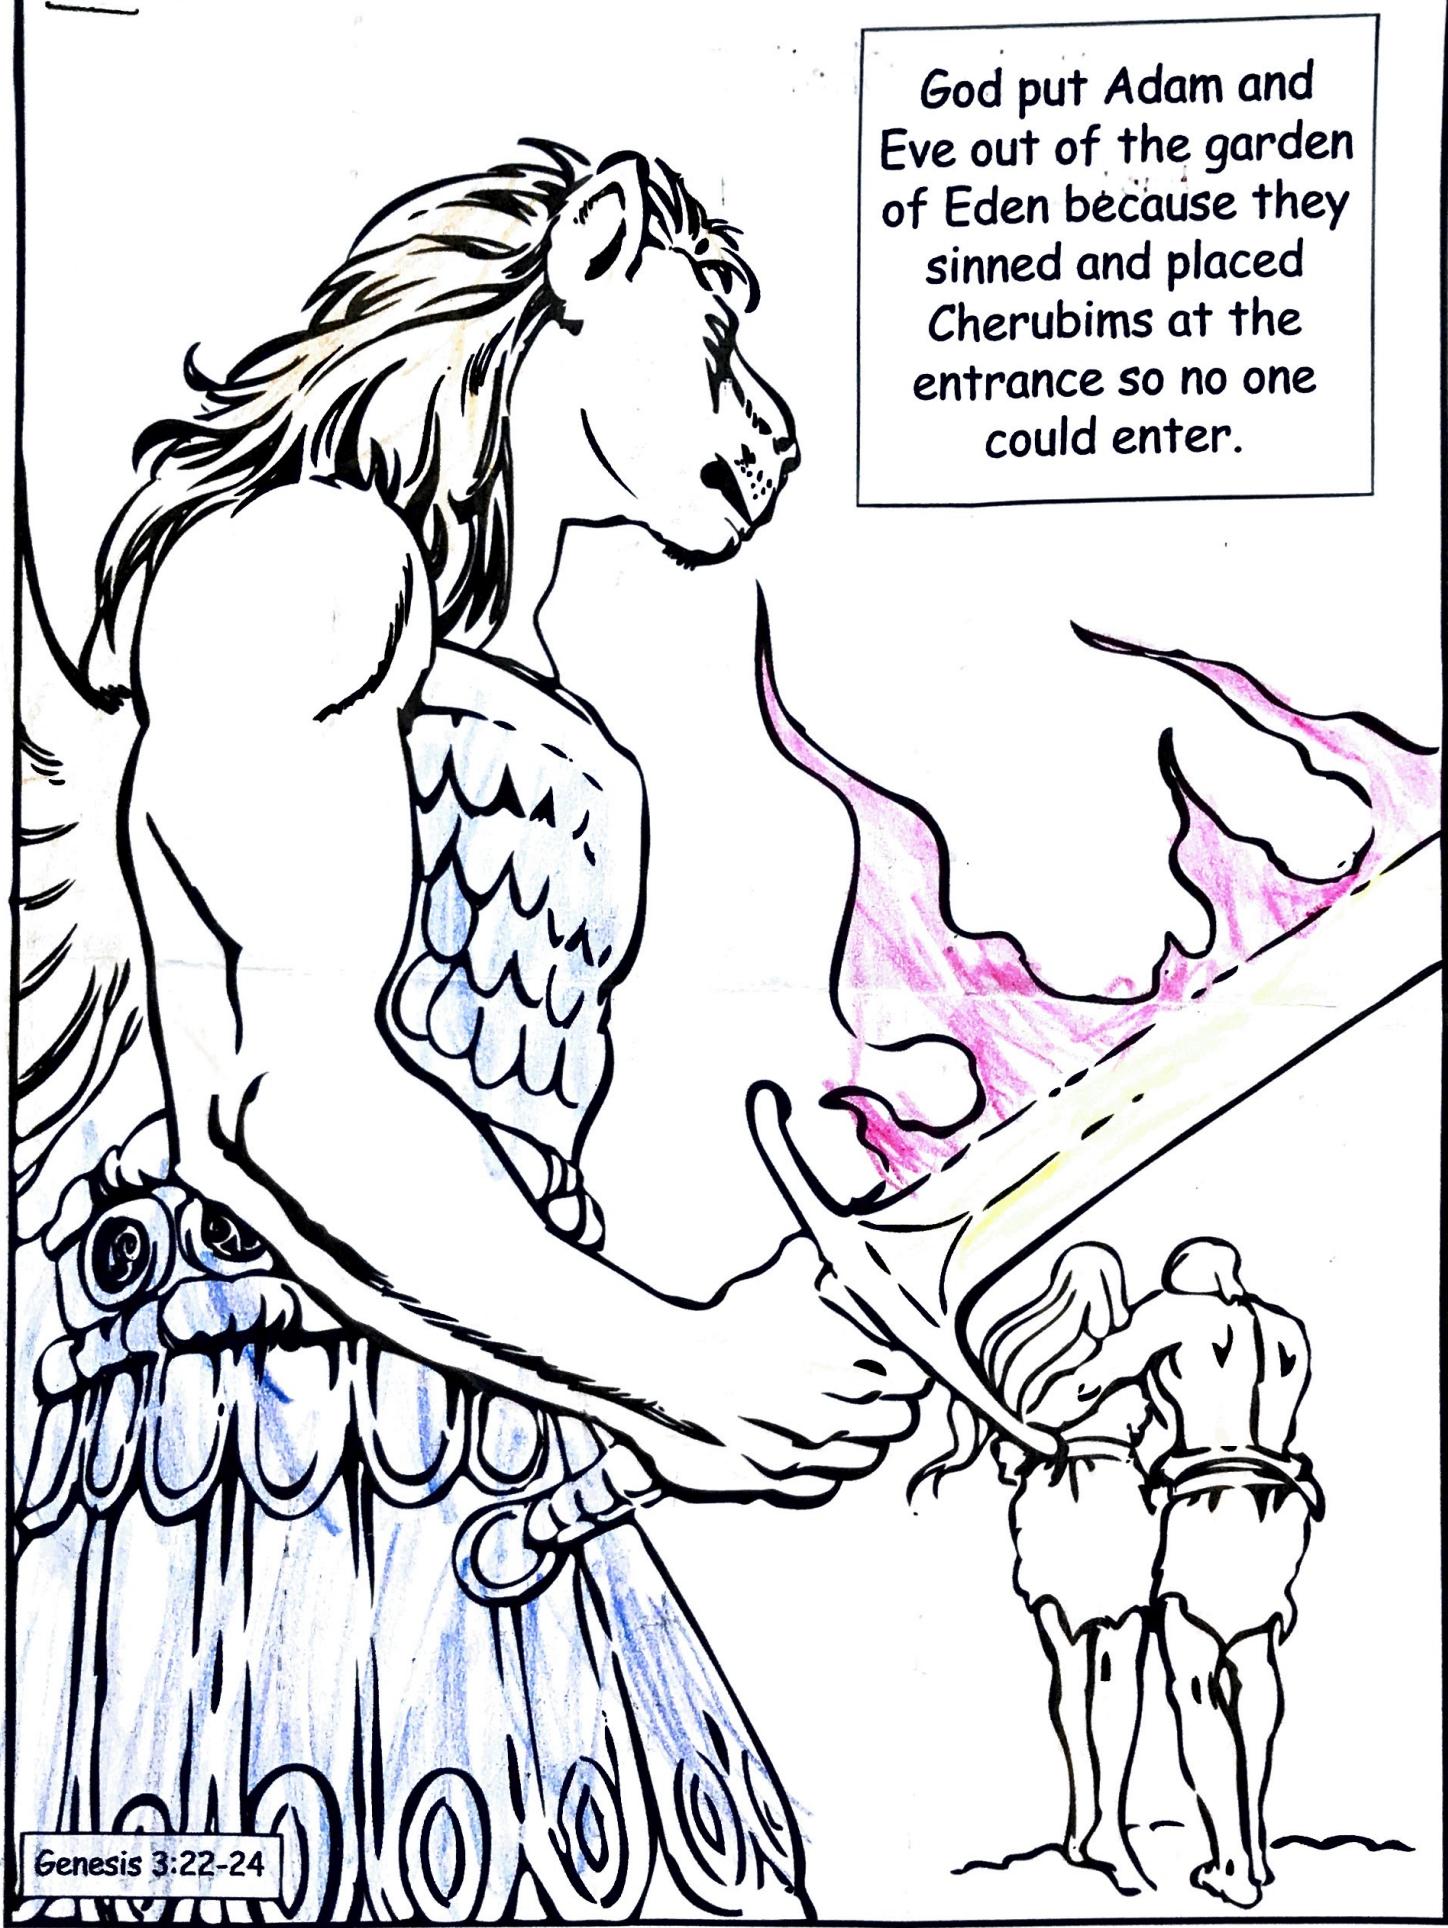

While Joseph and Mary were in Bethlehem, Mary had her baby. There was no room at any of the inns so she had to have him in a stable. They named the baby Jesus.

Saul got permission to go to another city and arrest more Christians, so he took a group of soldiers with him to get the job done.

I know of a cradle, so wee and so blue,
Where a baby is sleeping this morning--do you?

I think he is dreaming the dearest of things--
Of songs and of sunshine, of tiny brown wings.

I'll tell you a secret--don't tell where you heard--
The cradle's any egg-- and the baby's a bird!

Psalms

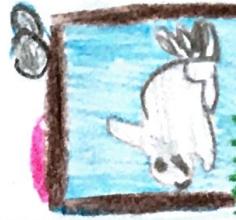

Book 1

Psalms 1

1 Blessed is the one who does not walk in the way of the wicked or stand in the way of those who sin. 2 But whose delight is in the law of the LORD, and who meditates on his law day and night, 3 that person is like a tree planted by streams of water, which yields its fruit in season, and whose leaf does not wither. Whatever they do prospers. 4 So the wicked! They are like chaff that the wind blows away. 5 Therefore the wicked will not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the brightness. 6 For the LORD watches over the way of the righteous, but the way of the wicked leads to destruction.

Dear LORD,

I love you so much and you love me too.
I know my family I love you.
Help my family I love you.
